STUDIO #7 2020

oil on canvas 30 x 30 inches

These paintings took shape in the winter and early spring of 2020, as the weight of the pandemic on our daily lives became clear. The news at first was troubling and as the seasons evolved it became more extreme. Compelled to consider everything in a different way, the jumble of stuff strewn across my studio worktable, full of the new and ominous tools of daily life, became a new landscape to explore – part inside, part outside – the tension of events bringing them together.
